

Complete Private Health Care

Medical consultation and health checks can be stressful for some people. That's why the London General Practice treats all patients as individuals and respects them accordingly. Getting to know patients is key to this so that a trusting open rapport can be built, ensuring any worries or concerns are expressed at the earliest opportunity and dealt with accordingly.

The building of a personal relationship between doctor and patient goes a long way to minimising any anxiety. A big part of this can be the waiting times so often associated with tests and screenings. At the London General Practice results from blood tests and scans are routinely available the next day, and in special circumstances can even be provided within an hour.

The Practice has the latest technology and first class facilities, situated in its prime Harley Street location. As such, procedures like scans, cardiac tests, x-rays, audiograms, mammograms and others, can be taken at the time of appointment within the Practice's own consulting rooms or within the same building. This approach minimises any inconvenience or waiting times for patients, and often negates the need to deal with numerous people who do not know you. In cases where additional expertise is required, Dr Ettlenger's personal relationship with many of the leading medical specialists is instantly accessible to all his patients, as is admission to the best private hospitals.

The London General Practice was founded by Dr Paul Ettlinger; one of London's most respected and well established private doctors. Dr Ettlinger and his Associates are based in the Harley Street area of London providing patients with a comprehensive range of excellent private health care.

The Practice prides itself on the flexible, personal care it gives its patients. Care that is available 365 days a year, including weekends and outside office hours. It also offers its own emergency visits 24 hours a day.

Building personal, meaningful relationships with all patients are of the utmost importance for the Practice, as is allowing proper time for a comprehensive, thorough and accurate personal health assessment.

The London General Practice consults for many private families, leading insurers, the entertainment industry, numerous multinational companies and prestigious London hotels.

The London General Practice – for Individuals

Dr Ettlinger has been treating private patients for over twenty years. In that time he has built up a reputation for providing a first class medical service with traditional values and continuity of personal care.

The Practice provides patients with complete private health care and this can include treatments and services not currently available on the NHS. Appointments are made that suit the patient and vary in length depending on the condition. All consultations are thorough, with every health aspect handled in an open and relaxed environment.

Dr Ettlinger and his Associates are one of only a handful of practices, which operate their own emergency visits 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

The London General Practice offers comprehensive private health care for individuals and their families. This in turn offers the personal care required in a friendly environment, and provides the reassurance that professional medical assistance with full diagnostic skills is available should the need arise, at any time.

The London General Practice – for Corporations

Dr Ettlinger and his Associates have considerable experience working for a number of large, prestigious organisations with locations throughout the world. This scope of work specialises in preventative health care and screening for company employees, and takes into account the demands and stress associated with a busy working lifestyle.
